

IRIS Program Outlook
[Month, Day, 2018]

The IRIS Program is committed to producing assessments in a timely and transparent manner. As a part of this effort, the IRIS Program is providing an outlook of ongoing and future program activities. The table below describes assessments currently under development and their future status. The table also includes recently completed milestones. Anticipated milestones are based on several factors including continuing need from EPA stakeholders (e.g., program and regional offices; state, local, and tribal partners) and the availability of resources. The IRIS Program is providing this information in order for stakeholders to be aware of upcoming products and to allow the public and research community an opportunity to communicate relevant research to EPA. Updates to this table will be provided periodically.
